

GENERAL SECTION

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

The Catalog is a guidepost to all those interested in learning about the University of Balamand. It is of particular importance to students who must familiarize themselves fully with its contents.

While catalogs introduce students to the history as well as to the philosophy of the University, it remains essentially a set of rules. Rules are of value in themselves. They guide students, and faculty as well, to strictly comply with them to avoid error.

I want to emphasize the priority of rules, particularly of the tendency in human nature to avoid them, to break them, or divert them from the public good, they are meant to uphold, to their private whims and needs. Rules teach us discipline, and they constitute the basic element in democracy. Rules equalize, and hence provide justice for all.

In a university, rules provide the student with the objective facts they must work with to excel in their main purpose to enter a university. The purpose is to get a good education, to specialize in a field and become professionals in it, to develop the passion for reading, for publishing, for contributing to the public good.

Consequently, I welcome all new students to our University, and look forward to interacting with them as much as possible. We are living in unusual times. We are living a trend of violence, chaos, and the permeating threat of extremism. It is our destiny to reverse it.

Universities are founded on faith in the Divine, on dependence on reason, on the unity of the human family, and in the hope of an ideal civilization founded on truth, justice, equality, and freedom. We are committed to this ideal.

From this vantage point we look at our environment and fashion a philosophy of service that will contribute to the rise of the civilization we yearn for.

Again, I welcome you, and wish you success in the realization of the goals that have goaded you to join our ranks.

Elie A. Salem

BALAMAND: HISTORY AND EVOLUTION

DAYR AL-BALAMAND

Dayr al-Balamand, or Belmont Abbey as it was named by the Cistercian monks who built it in 1175 AD, rises on a plateau which overlooks the Mediterranean to the West and the verdant olive groves of the al-Kurah district to the East. Belmont is French for “beautiful hill.” It is believed that the Belmont Abbey was constructed on the site of an ancient Byzantine Abbey.

The plan of the Abbey conforms to the communal life style of the Cistercian Order, with the main buildings surrounding the cloister in a concentric pattern. The size of the church indicates the presence at one time of a large community within the Abbey. The main hall, vaults of the capitulary halls, church gallery, kitchen, refectory, and cellars were all built in the Thirteenth Century. The western part of the church and the sacristies are probably the only sections that survive from the earlier Byzantine period. The stone bell tower with its four cornices, a typical mid-Twelfth Century design, still reigns over the Abbey and is the only such surviving tower in the East.

With the departure of the Cistercians from the region around 1289 the property reverted to the Greek Orthodox Church. The Abbey was rebuilt in 1603. The Abbey prospered and became an important center of Orthodox theology containing a vast library of manuscripts and religious books. The monks copied manuscripts for distribution to the other monasteries that proliferated in the al-Kurah district and its environs.

The Abbey became a sanctuary for the families of the region during times of political conflict, epidemics, or natural disasters. At the end of the Seventeenth Century and the beginning of the Eighteenth Century, the Abbey experienced a period of great prosperity, after which it suffered a decline in the wake of the schism that led to the rise of the Greek Catholic community.

The Greek Orthodox part of the complex, though relatively new, blends smoothly with the old Cistercian architecture, both in the building materials used and in the design. The church gallery was built in the Seventeenth Century, the capitulary hall was transformed into Saint George’s chapel, and the large entrance to the refectory made into a porch. The Church of Our Lady was enhanced with a new altar, a Seventeenth-Century iconostasis of sculpted wood, icons of great value, Persian tiles, and floors of white marble.

In 1833 a theological institute was established and authorized by the Ottoman authorities to offer instruction at elementary, secondary, and university levels. The institute adopted Arabic instead of Greek as the language of instruction. This resurgence alarmed those of the clergy who favored Greek hegemony, and the institute was closed down in 1840.

In 1921 the Abbey opened a high school for students of all persuasions who came from near and far away. It was closed down three years later, reopened in 1960, and remains to this day one of the finest educational institutions in the area.

In 1966 a building for the newly established Theological Institute was made possible through a grant from the Antiochian Orthodox Archbishop of North America, Metropolitan Antony Bashir. His successor, Metropolitan Philip Saliba, continues his generous support to the Institute.

In 1970 the Institute was renamed the Saint John of Damascus Institute of Theology after its patron Saint John of Damascus, an eminent eighth century theologian. In the 1970s, the Institute flourished under the leadership of Bishop Hazim, who later became the Patriarch.

A massive restoration program has been undertaken in the Abbey leading to the restoration of the church, the icons, and the many magnificent halls that were, until recently, in utter disrepair. The Great Hall of the Abbey has now become the venue for lectures, concerts, and recitals, and a major center of cultural activity in North Lebanon. Work is proceeding on two important halls to serve as museums of anthropology and of archaeology.

The Abbey is now under the direction of His Eminence Bishop Ghattas Hazim. It is in continuing interaction with the faculty and students of the University in the full belief that the Abbey and the University are as complementary to each other as faith is to reason.

In 1988, The University of Balamand was founded.

THE UNIVERSITY

The birth of a University often depends on the fortunate confluence of a number of factors. Of these factors, perhaps the most important is the presence of one individual who acted as guide, goad, and catalyst.

Late Patriarch Ignatius IV, the Greek Orthodox Patriarch of Antioch and all the East, who had served previously as the Abbot of the Balamand Abbey, believed the time was opportune in 1988 to establish a University. By then, the events were calling for action. The Lebanese war was coming to an end, and concerned citizens were faced with the legacy of a war that had raged since 1975. Lebanese society was in disarray. North Lebanon, generally marginal in state planning, was further marginalized and impoverished during the long war. Confessional thinking and parochial loyalties were exacerbated, threatening future divisions in the society. Ethical standards and spiritual principles were greatly compromised.

The Late Patriarch, in consultation with his bishops and leading figures in the community, decided to establish a university that would issue forth from the Greek Orthodox community but would be a full-fledged university serving the cause of knowledge and the interests of the community, Lebanon, the Arab East, and Lebanese communities abroad.

As the extensive Balamand property in the al-Kurah district is under the direct administration of the Patriarchate, the Patriarchate allocated a scenic hill of 454,000-m² (45.4 Hectares) overlooking the Mediterranean to be used as a University campus. Construction began in 1988, the year the University was licensed by the Lebanese Government, and has continued at a rapid pace. Buildings accommodating the Faculties of Arts and Social Sciences, Engineering, Graphic Design, Interior Design, Sciences, Business and Management, Medicine and Medical Sciences, and the School of Tourism and Hotel Management have been completed. The Student Union building and the Administration building were completed in 2004. All buildings have been donated by Lebanese and Arab benefactors.

When it was founded, the University of Balamand incorporated two previously independent programs - the Lebanese Academy of Fine Arts (ALBA) and the Saint John of Damascus Institute of Theology. Alexis Boutros founded ALBA, the first exclusively Lebanese institute of higher learning, in the 1930s. It joined the University of Balamand in 1988 and brought with it rigorous and well-established programs in architecture, decorative arts, plastic arts, and urban studies.

Similarly, the Institute of Theology, founded in 1970, had enjoyed an established record for some two decades in graduating theologians and spiritual leaders before it joined the University. The Saint John of Damascus Institute of Theology is the Faculty through which the University delves into Orthodox theology, culture and history, and through it, the University hopes to further the revival of Balamand Abbey as a vibrant spiritual center.

The Government decree of 1988 authorized the establishment of the University of Balamand starting with the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. Académie Libanaise des Beaux Arts (ALBA), and the Institute of Theology. Five years later, four more Faculties were added. These are the Faculty of Sciences, the Faculty of Engineering, the Faculty of Business and Management, and the Faculty of Health Sciences. A Government decree of 1999 authorized the establishment of the Saint George's Faculty of Post Graduate Medical Education and the University Institute of Technology, the Government decree of 2000 authorized the establishment of the Faculty of Medicine & Medical Sciences. The latest is the Faculty of Library and Information Studies which was established in 2012.

The University follows the American educational model. The language of instruction is English, but the University also offers programs in French and Arabic. The entire program of ALBA, Sin el Fil campus, is taught in French, while its programs at the Main Campus are taught in English.

A Board of Trustees made up of leading Lebanese and Arab personalities and chaired by His Beatitude the Greek Orthodox Patriarch of Antioch and all the East governs the University. The Board of Trustees elects the president of the University and, upon the recommendation of the president, appoints deans, directors, and faculty members in the ranks of associate and full professors.

The president and the deans, and directors, working as a University Council, manage the University by consensus. Similarly, each Faculty has its own council, thus involving faculty members in decision making.

The first president of the University was Dr. George Tohmeh (1988-1990), a Syrian professor of philosophy and history and a prominent diplomat. He was followed by His Excellency Mr. Ghassan Tuani (1990-1993), a leading Lebanese statesman, diplomat, and journalist. The current president, Dr. Elie A. Salem, served as Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at the American University of Beirut and as Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The immediate agenda of the University is to strengthen existing programs, expand existing Faculties, and attract highly qualified faculty and students. The University is new and it must proceed with innovation, fortitude, and determination, conscious always of its commitment to inspire the new generation and to better serve the needs of society

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY POLICY

1. INTRODUCTION

As a community committed to intellectual endeavors, the University of Balamand recognizes honesty as the foundation of the academic activities of its faculty members and students. UOB strives to provide students with the knowledge, skills, and judgment they need to function in society as educated adults. Falsifying or fabricating the results of one's research, presenting the words, ideas, data, or work of another as one's own, or cheating on an examination corrupts the essential process of higher education.

2. GUIDELINES FOR ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Students assume full responsibility for the content and integrity of the coursework they submit. The following are guidelines to assist students in observing academic integrity:

- Students must do their own work and submit only their own work on examinations, reports, and projects, unless otherwise asked by the instructor. Students are urged to contact their instructor about appropriate citation guidelines.
- Students may benefit from working in groups. They may collaborate or cooperate with other students on graded assignments or examinations if instructed to do so by the instructor.
- Students must follow all written and/or verbal instructions given by instructors prior to taking examinations, placement assessments, tests, quizzes, and evaluations.
- Students are responsible for adhering to course requirements as specified by the instructor in the course syllabus.

3. FORMS OF ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

Academic dishonesty includes, but is not necessarily limited to, the following:

- a. Plagiarism is intentionally or carelessly passing off another person's work as one's own. It is taking and using information, ideas, opinions, theories or another person's actual words or source without acknowledging the source, thereby creating the impression that the work is one's own.

Plagiarism can occur in the following ways:

- i. Using text from another source (e. g. books, journals, newspapers, web sites, etc.) without documenting the source
- ii. Using direct quotation (the exact words or verbatim) from a text without quotation marks, even if the source has been cited correctly

- iii. Paraphrasing or summarizing the ideas or text of another work without documenting the source
 - iv. Substituting a word or phrase for the original while maintaining the original sentence structure or intent of the passage with or without citing the source
 - v. Using graphics, visual imagery, video or audio material without permission of the author (or publisher) or acknowledgment of the source
 - vi. Translating text from one language to another without citing the original work
 - vii. Obtaining packaged information, foreign language translation or a completed paper from an on-line source and submitting it as one's own work without acknowledgment of the source
 - viii. Presenting the work of another as one's own.
- b. Cheating is giving or receiving, or attempting to give or receive any unauthorized aid during an examination to improve a grade or obtain course credit. Cheating is not limited to examination situations alone, but arises whenever students attempt to gain an unearned academic advantage.
 - c. Duplicate Use of Written Work is the submission of the same paper, or substantially similar papers for two different courses without the consent of the instructors.

4. PENALTIES FOR ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

- 4.1. If a student is found guilty of violating academic integrity policies, any one or a combination of the following penalties may be imposed:
 - Failure of the assignment, project, or examination on which the student was found to be academically dishonest.
 - Failure of the course in consultation with the Dean. Such offense will be documented in the student's record to note repeat offenders.
- 4.2. Any case of cheating will automatically result in a grade of zero on the assignment in question. Repeat offenders must be administratively dropped from the course, with a grade of 40, and referred to the University Disciplinary Committee which will consider suspension or expulsion from the university.
- 4.3. The Faculty Dean may also raise the case to the University Disciplinary Committee where the latter may issue the following disciplinary sanctions after a hearing, in accordance with the Academic Integrity and Copyright Policies:
 - Placement on Academic Probation
 - Suspension from the University for a definite period of time ranging from a semester to a full academic year
 - Dismissal from the University.

5. ENCOURAGING RESPONSIBLE WORK

Faculty members should encourage students to do responsible work. This is best accomplished by designing assignments, which require students to draw on their personal skills and do their own work. Lists of possible assignments duplicated/little changed from year to year should be avoided.

6. PLAGIARISM STATEMENT FOR SYLLABUS

Faculty members are requested to include a statement on plagiarism in the syllabus of each course and make reference to the UOB Policy on Academic Integrity and Copyright.

ACADEMIC COPYRIGHT POLICY

1. DEFINITIONS

According to the Oxford English Dictionary, copyright is “the exclusive right given by law for a certain term of years to an author, composer, designer, etc. (or his assignee), to print, publish, and sell copies of his original work.”

The Lebanese Copyright Law endorsed on April 3, 1999, and entered into force on June 6, 1999 “has now extended to computer software, video films and all kinds of audio-visual works. The law now provides stiffer penalties for offenders and better compensation to the persons whose rights have been infringed. The manner in which the copyright is breached has also been extended.” (as stated on the website of the Ministry of Economy and Trade).

The Lebanese Copyright Law makes it illegal to import, make, distribute, sell, or rent copies of copyrighted materials without authorization from the owner. No copies except one backup copy are allowed without the specific authorization of the copyright owner.

2. FAIR USE:

“Fair use,” a concept embedded in the law, recognizes that certain uses of copyright-protected works do not require permission from the copyright holder or its agent. These include instances of minimal use that do not interfere with the copyright holder’s exclusive rights to reproduce and reuse the work.

The Lebanese law does allow the practice of “fair use,” a legal concept that allows the reproduction of copyrighted material for certain purposes without obtaining permission and without paying a fee or royalty. Purposes permitting the application of “fair use” generally include reviewing, news reporting, teaching, and scholarly research.

Chapter VI of the Lebanese Copyright Law (Exceptions) Item 25 & 26 on the Protection of Literary and Artistic Property (No. 75 of April 3, 1999) states that

25. “... It shall also be permitted, without the authorization of the author and without obligation to pay him compensation, to use a limited part of any legally published work for purposes of criticism, argumentation or citation or for an educational purpose, provided that the part used does not exceed what is necessary and customary. However, the name of the author and the source shall always be indicated, if the name of the author is included in the work.

26. It shall be permitted, without the authorization of the author and without obligation to pay him compensation, to copy or reproduce articles published in newspapers and magazines or short excerpts of a work, provided that it is done solely for educational purposes and within the necessary limits of such purpose. If the names of the author(s) and the publisher appear on the original work, they shall be mentioned in each and every use of the copy of the article or work.”

3. WHAT CAN BE PHOTOCOPIED?

A single photocopy of a portion of a copyright-protected work, such as:

1. A maximum of three (3) chapters from a book (never the entire book);
2. An article from a periodical or newspaper;
3. A short story, essay, or poem. One work is the norm whether it comes from an individual work or an anthology;
4. A chart, graph, diagram, drawing, cartoon or picture from a book, periodical, or newspaper.

However, in all cases, the name of the author and the source should always be indicated.

4. WHAT SHOULD BE AVOIDED?

1. Making multiple copies of different works that could substitute for the purchase of books, publisher's reprints, or periodicals;
2. Copying the same works from semester to semester;
3. Copying the same material for several different courses at the same or different institutions.

5. WHEN IS PERMISSION REQUIRED?

1. When the material is used for commercial purposes
2. When the material is used repeatedly
3. When a work longer than 2,500 words is used in its entirety

6. WHAT ARE THE PENALTIES?

The University of Balamand does not condone nor tolerate the unauthorized copying of licensed material by staff, faculty, or students. The University shall adhere to its contractual responsibilities and shall comply with all copyright laws, and expects all members of the University community to do so as well.

Members of the University community who violate this policy may be subject to discipline through standard University procedures. It falls on the Dean and faculty members to report such cases. Subject to the facts and circumstances of each case, such individuals shall be solely responsible for their defense and any resulting liability.

DISCIPLINARY PROBATION

Illegal actions and misconduct such as cheating on tests, plagiarism, and disrupting classes and examinations are subject to disciplinary action. A student placed on disciplinary probation is not eligible to receive financial aid during the period of probation. Upon recommendation of the Faculty in which the student is enrolled, the student may be removed from disciplinary probation after one semester. In cases of severe or repeated infractions of University regulations, a student will be subject to suspension or dismissal from the University.

GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIPS

Students can earn financial support through the Graduate Assistantship Program. Applications to this Program are submitted through the respective Faculties and reviewed before the start of each academic semester. Eligible students are allocated a certain number of hours per week to work in one of the following categories:

1. Teaching Assistant
2. Graduate Assistant
3. Research Assistant
4. Technical Assistant

Normally, these assistantships cover from 20% to 50% of the tuition fees. However, the number of these assistantships and the number of hours assigned per week will depend on:

- The fund allocated by the University
- The academic merit of the applicants
- The availability of positions with faculty members and technical centers.

SIBLING GRANT

A Sibling Grant (7.5% for second, 12.5% for third) is given when two or more brothers and/or sisters are registered at the University of Balamand. No application is needed to qualify for this Grant.

II.2. Courses and Grades

Courses taken as part of the graduate program fall in one of two categories, graduate or bridging, with different grading systems:

Graduate Level Courses

These courses are normally numbered 300 or above (except for Engineering & Business 400 or above). The minimum passing grade for a graduate course is 70. Students in the graduate programs are required to maintain a cumulative average of at least 80 in all graduate level courses. The minimum grade for a graduate course is 55. (See sections III and IV below)

Bridging Courses

Graduate students with a different background from the graduate degree being pursued may be asked to take some undergraduate courses as bridging courses. If a student fails in any of the undergraduate bridging courses, he is allowed to repeat that course only once. Failure to meet the requirements stipulated above will result in the student being dropped from the graduate program. Students who are taking bridging courses are allowed to take along some graduate-level courses (maximum 6 credits) following the approval of the concerned department and the Dean of the faculty. Bridging courses must be completed during the first year of enrollment in the graduate program.

Transfer Credits

Students transferring to the graduate programs may be granted transfer credits up to 40% of the total credits required of the degree including 20% as CBE (credit by exam). Students pay ¼ of the credit fee of the corresponding program type per faculty rate excluding any automatic support. Transferred credits apply only to courses in which the applicant had earned a minimum grade of 80 and equivalent in content to courses offered at UOB.

The concerned Department/Faculty decides on the equivalency of courses.

III. GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

VI. TRACKS AT THE GRADUATE LEVEL

Students may choose one of three routes for conducting a research or professional project at the graduate level: A Field Project, a Training Project, or a Graduate Thesis. They are defined as follows:

Field Project - The Field Project (3 credits) allows the students to apply academic theory to solve real and practical problems. Students produce a report containing the following sections: Abstract, Introduction, Background, Problem Identification, Solution Approach/Methodology, Data Collection and Results, Conclusions and Recommendations, References, and Appendices. This project may be carried out by an individual student or by a team of students with a maximum of two persons on each team.

A Project Proposal must be submitted to the Dean's Office during the first two weeks from the time of registration in this Field Project.

Upon review of the Proposal, the Dean and/or Graduate committee recommends to the student names of faculty members who would be appropriate to serve as advisors and examiners (readers/ committee members). Each project team must have an advisor and two committee members. The committee members may be from within the Faculty and/or may be external.

The Field Project tuition fee is valid for a maximum of two registration semesters. The second Project registration semester following the first registration semester is for zero credit tuition (only reactivation fee applies).

Training Project - This is a 6-credit graduate Project conducted at specialized institutions/universities with contracts signed between the concerned Faculty and the training institution. The student will have an external advisor as well as an internal one (from the Faculty).

A professional Project, for duration of two semesters, would need to be submitted to the Dean's office for approval, prior to signing the contract. At the end of the training program, a student needs to submit a detailed report to the Dean's office, following instructions outlined by each discipline, and to take an oral examination conducted by a Dean-appointed committee charged with grading the project and the presentation. Note that this "Training Project" is different from the "Field Training" sometimes required in graduate programs.

Thesis - The Thesis (6 credits) allows the students to perform research and synthesize information through critical thinking, evaluation, and sound decision making. The Thesis is an individually-performed research project on a topic that is grounded in theory, has more depth and a broader scope. At the beginning of the second year of the program, the student initiates the process of outlining a Thesis proposal and submits an outline to the Professor, he or she is desiring to work with and have as a Thesis Advisor. The student's choice must be approved by the Dean who will nominate a Thesis Committee or seek the help of the Academic Graduate Committee to do so. Upon completion of the Thesis, the student produces a report containing the following sections: Abstract, Introduction, Background, Problem Identification, Solution Approach/Methodology, Data Collection and Results, Conclusions and Recommendations, References, and Appendices. A Research Proposal must be submitted to the Dean's Office within one month from the time of registration in the Thesis.

The Thesis defense shall be open to the public and shall be announced at least two weeks in advance.

The Thesis tuition is valid for a maximum of four Thesis registration semesters. The three Thesis registration semesters following the first registration semester are for zero credit tuition (only reactivation fee applies each time the student registers). Any subsequent Thesis registration after the first four registration semesters, a Thesis fee equivalent to three graduate credits is applied and is valid for a maximum of two regular semesters.

MANDATORY REQUIREMENTS:

Graduate students completing a Field project or a Graduate thesis must submit the following documents:

1. Before starting work on the thesis/project, the graduate student(s) and the supervisor must sign three copies of the University of Balmand Graduate Thesis/Project Agreement, an agreement whereby both parties agree to abide by UOB policies outlined in the Policy and Style Manual for the Completion of a Graduate Thesis/Project. This document provides help and guidelines on preparing the final copy of the thesis/project according to the policy of the University of Balmand. Two copies remain with both signing parties and the third copy is submitted to the Dean's Office to forward to the Library.

2. After the defense/presentation, two copies of the Thesis Completion Clearance Form must be signed by the student(s) and the supervisor. The Librarian will only sign if the student(s) have completed the work according to the Policy and Style Manual for the Completion of a Graduate Thesis/Project. One copy will be returned to the Dean's Office for the Registrar's Office to record and announce the final grade.
